Dear Pennsylvania Grower

This special edition of the Pennsylvania Vegetable Growers News, the monthly newsletter of the Pennsylvania Vegetable Growers Association, has been prepared as a source book of information for you, the Pennsylvania grower. We have listed various vendors of equipment, supplies and services who deal with Pennsylvania growers. Keep this booklet handy to refer to throughout the year.

We also ask you to consider joining the Pennsylvania Vegetable Growers Association. If you are a vegetable, potato or berry grower, you should belong to the organization that represents your industry. Founded in 1926, PVGA has been serving growers like you for 93 years. Your membership will strengthen the Association's position as the official voice of the vegetable, potato and berry industries and will also provide numerous benefits to you.

For example, each year the Association co-sponsors the Mid-Atlantic Fruit and Vegetable Convention in Hershey. This meeting is one of the most respected vegetable meetings on the East Coast and offers three days of concurrent sessions on processing vegetables, fresh market vegetables, potatoes, small fruits, bedding plants, direct marketing, organic vegetables, cut flowers and other specialty crops. As a member of the Association, you help make this convention possible and you receive reduced registration fees. PVGA also sponsors regional grower meetings and farm market tours.

As a member, you will receive monthly subscriptions to this newsletter, the Pennsylvania Vegetable Grower News, to keep you informed on what is happening in the vegetable, potato and berry industries. PVGA members also receive free subscriptions to the American Vegetable Grower and the Vegetable Growers News.

Last year, the Association gave over $80 per member of the Association or a total of $80,000 to researchers to sponsor practical vegetable and berry research. This was made possible through the Association's food booth at the Pennsylvania Farm Show. The food booth also helps to promote the vegetable and berry products you produce.

PVGA represents the interests of the vegetable, potato and berry industries on both state and federal issues. The Association contacts legislators regularly on issues that affect our growers. Special attention is given to food safety, state budget appropriations, labor, deer crop damage, irrigation (water use), high tunnels, and pesticides as they relate to horticultural growers.

The Association is also a member of the State Council of Farm Organizations, the United Fresh Produce Association and the Penn State Agricultural Council, again with the purpose of representing the vegetable, potato and berry industries in the public arena and to Penn State University researchers and administrators.

The bottom line is this. A $50 membership in the Pennsylvania Vegetable Growers Association is worth every penny. For each member, about $80 is given to research, about $24 is spent to publish the Pennsylvania Vegetable Growers News, and $90 or more per person can be saved on three-day registration fees for the Mid-Atlantic Fruit and Vegetable. That adds up to $194 or near 4X the return on your dues investment.

Use the form on page 30 of this newsletter to join today!

The Pennsylvania Vegetable Growers News is the official monthly publication of the Pennsylvania Vegetable Growers Association, Inc., 815 Middle Road, Richfield, PA 17086-9205

FieldWatch®
Communication. Cooperation. Collaboration.

Now Available in Pennsylvania

FieldWatch® is a voluntary online program designed to help pesticide applicators view potentially sensitive crops and beehives in their area so they can make informed decisions when preparing to make an application. Developed by Purdue University and other agricultural stakeholders in 2009, this program is now used in 22 states and one Canadian province. In Pennsylvania, the program is being offered as a collaboration between Penn State Extension and the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture.

Commercial specialty crop growers, commercial and hobbyist beekeepers, and applicators can go to the FieldWatch® website, which contains several mapping tools: DriftWatch® for specialty crop growers, BeeCheck® for beekeepers, and FieldCheck® for applicators. Users can register for the appropriate tool(s). Growers and beekeepers can then mark the locations of their fields and/or hives on a highly accurate mapping tool. This will allow applicators to view specialty crops and beehives near their application sites.

This program receives funding through industry sponsors and is free to use, though users do have the option of becoming supporting members by paying an annual membership fee.

Go to fieldwatch.com for more information and to register.

Please note that the FieldWatch® program is completely voluntary and does not provide a basis for any regulatory or legal action. Growers, beekeepers, and applicators are not required to use FieldWatch® and applicators are permitted to apply whichever pesticides they choose as long as they are following the label and complying with all state and federal laws.
